Carcaso, October 14 .- An official dispatel from General Merritt, dated October 11th says he moved down the river to a point near White river agency that morning The cavalry which had been out in differ ent directions looking for Indians report that the trails led to Grand river. He has but little doubt but that the Indians have gone to Uncompahogee agency. He expected Gilbert and Henry the following day, and would then move to Grand river. He had buried seven bodies, including Meeker. He was in doubt about the number the hostiles could muster. It had been clearly ascertained that all the Uintah Indians joined the Utes before the Thornburg dians joined the Utes before the Thornburg fight. He concludes, "if my orders are to go to the Southern agency and fight what we meet, I shall be glad to carry them out; but I hope my instructions will not be delayed." Merritt regrets exceedingly the great amount of military supplies sold to these Indians by the ranchmen.

The house was well filled, and the demonstration of appliance and laughter were trations of applause and laughter were bundant. The comedy well deserves the uccess it has met with as it is a genuine American comedy, filled with characters that grow only on our side and with scenes that could not occur elsewhere."

Headed by Grafulla's band and escorted by the above named companies, the Guards passed up Courtlandt street to Broadway amid the plaudits of thousands of admiring spectators. Captain Burke responded in a feeling manner and was loudly cheered. The health of Mayor Calboun was drank, when that gentleman, to some extent overcome by the strength of his smotion at the exalted honor, made an earnst response, in the course of which he said hat the past was buried and we must look that the past was buried and we must look to the future. Other speeches were made. Commissioner Brennan invited the Guards to partake of the hospitalities of Blackwell's stand. Colone' Jusson, of General Shaler's staff, asked Captain Burke to take part in the First division parade Wednesday. General Varian heartily welcomed the strangers, and Lieutenant Fitzgeraid, of the Seventh, offered the hand of fellow-dip to them. Leaving the board coom the officers repaired to the drill room where in the presence of the Seventh and many visitors the Gate City Guards gave an exhibition drill which was pronounced by veterans of the Seventh to have been unjunlled by any visting corps resounded with the cheers of the Seventh.

After the drillieg the guards were escorted to the Coleman house by the Seventh. They attended Dr. Deems's church of the strangers on Sunday. Altogether, they have been gloriously treated.

PHILADRIPHIA, October 10.- EDITORS CON stitution—Ten thousand dags are waving in Ph-ladelphia this bright October day, all in honor of Captain Burke and his gallant Gate City Guards. I happened to arrive in Washington in time to see the grand demo stration made by the military and citizens of the national capitol in honor of the "Atlanta boys"—as the citizens designate the Guards; also in Baltimore, where the whole city, civic and military, was in heli-day attire, and made it exceedingly pleas-ant for the "Atlanta boys."

WEEPING OVER THE GRAVE OF WASHINGTON.
While at Washington the boys were treat ed to a steamboat ride to Mt. Vernon, and wandered over the beautiful estate which was the boine of General Washington. A visit to Mt. Vernon is calculated to inspire celings of the loftiest patriotism and love of country, but we did not think emotions so intense could be aroused as were exhibi-ed by Lieutenant Bill Sparks, and citizens fim Collins and Joseph Tye. They were Jim Collins and Joseph Tye. They were observed weeping copiously over an ancient, solid structure, half buried in a grassy sidehill. When asked: "Why this grief?" they answered: "This is the grave of the father of his country—boo! boo! boo! boo! They were told gently, but firmly that they were expeeding their grief over the Mt. Vernon ice house, and that George and Martha lay in the granite tomb, yonder, cased in marprising Philadelphia stone cutter has con

A very large audience assembled in the hall of the house of representatives last evening to hear the address by Colonel John H. Seals, editor of the Sunny South. H. Seals, editor of the Sunny South.
Colonel Seals appeared promptly, and for one hour and fort, minutes entertained the large crowd with a surprisingly bright, witty and sensible speech. His comments upon the politicians of the day, and specially to Hill, Toombs and Stephens, were loudly applauded, and the ridicule and satire prominent in the speech were highly enjoyed.

Colonel Seals made a decied hit, and his speech will be remembered by all who heard it as one of the spiciest and most thoroughly original reviews of the situation that has been heard in Atlanta for years. We feel certain that more frequent dissertations from Colonel Seals would prove interesting and profitable to the public.

Early yesterday morning Miss Josephine Bishop died at the residence of her mother in this city. She was for a long time connected with The Constitution bookbindery and job office. A few weeks ago she was attacked with a severe cold and it proved to be consumption, swift and fatal. With the same patient womanliness which always characterized her in life she met death, and her last moments were like a falling into a sieep which brought sweet rest. Her gentle life made many love her, and her sad death leaves a sorrow in many hearts. To her bereaved mother and sisters we offer our sympathy with a hope for that pure soothing which comes from Him that pure soothing which comes from Him who feels their affliction.

Tuneditor and proprietor of the Lemans Sentinel says that his paper is and always has been republican in politics. It simply maintains, he says, the doctrines advocated by Thad Stevens. He further says that the Sentinel fairly and fully sents the sentiments of the repub an leaders in the United States. Its language and style, he admits, does not meet universal approval; but he claims the thoughts it embodies and the purpose it outlines are in accord with the feelings of an overwhelming majority of republ cans We are inclined to think that the editor of the Sentinel is more than half right in these respects. The republican party will certainly be on the platform of complete centralization if it goes as far in that direction during the next year as it has in the past year.

Why Was the Wild Land Investiga

resulted in the impeachment and convition of Mr. Goldsmith, the late comr troller-general, was organized by the house for the purpose of investigating the wild land frauds to which the attention of the legislature had been called by various state that the confusion existing in the wild land law, and the persistent re fusal of the legislature to change it, were either the occasion or the result of frauds hundreds of thousands of dollars, and this opinion was stimulated by the fact ourts in various portions of the state. tee proceeded with its investigations, and it was presently discovered not only that immense frauds had been com mitted, but that those who committee hem had been shrewd enough to manipu late them through the office of the comp troller-general. The evidence as to this as overwhelming, and just at this juncture the committee turned their attention to the comptroller hin self, with what result our reader already know. What they found wa evidence going to show that Mr. Gold smith had been made apparently the really its victim. Properly enough he was impeached and properly enough he was found guilty, whatever may be said of the severity of the sentence.

Having accomplished this result, and having thus fairly begun their work, the committee suddenly abundon the inves tigation and leave the public to puzzle itself over the suggestive character of the testimony which they had accumulated Why was the work of the committee abandoned? Without making a mystery of the matter, it is enough to say that we are not in a position to answer the inqui ry. We do not know why Mr. Goldsmith has been punished and the ringleaders in the frauds allowed to escape We do not know why the house has allowed an investigation which had barely begun and which promised so much re lief for the people to be abandoned, and it is for this reason that we once more venture to make the inquiry. Taking all the circumstances and all the facts into consideration, the people will be justified in demanding of their representatives the reasons that impelled them to abandon a chase in which, although one quarry had been brought down, other and (so far as the real interests of the public are concerned) more important game was in sight.

What are the facts? The evidence shows that the committee were upon the threshold of new developments in the wild land frauds. The testimony taken establishes beyond all question the fact that certain parties, with headquarters in various portions of the state and agents in nearly every county, are engaged in these fraudulent wild land speculations; that they work together and play into each other's hands for a corrupt purpose, that they manipulate county offces, and that they succeeded in manipulating the comptroller-general; that they have reduced their swindling operations to a system. How do the impeachment and conviction of Mr. Goldsmith interfere with these operations? In what respect does his punishment relieve the people? Hundreds of citizens in every-section of the state are at this moment the victims of the wild land pirates; does the conviction of the late comptroller-general restore to them their lands or the bogus fees and costs they have been compelled to pay? The titles of more than a million of acres of land are fraudulently claimed by these corrupt speculators; does the impeachment of Mr. Goldsmith restore these lands to their rightful owners? In every county in the state where there are one hundred acres of wild lands these frauds have been carried on and now exist: does the conviction of the comptroller-general cure them? The people will look at results, and those who people will look at results, and those who have suffered from the operations of the wild land pirates whose frauds have been partially uncovered by a committee of britches light and got under dat hat."

Too thin, gov pie have suffered and the embarrassment ander which the real owners of wild lands have labored and now labor, that a nore important duty never suggested itself to a legislative assembly. The impeachment of Mr. Goldsmith should have been merely one of the incidents instead of the end of the investigation. The people demand relief. They want their ands restored to them; they want the bogus costs and fees that have been o filched from their pockets returned to them; they want an assurance that they will no longer be made the victims of a system of robbery the details of which are known to every intelligent member of the general assembly. Gentlemen—I put on the Pad two weeks ago tonight, and can say now that I am fully persuaded of its just claim to all its -converts have said in its favor. How the future will be I am unable to say. For the first five days the effect was so decided as to make me doubt my own experience.
I suppose I have opened a market for a half dozen

Has not the attendance in the gallery of the senate shown that it was so considered? It would call the attention of senators, Mr. President, to a little incident which occurred here yesterday. When this matter came up, when it was thought that it was going to be discussed, the galleries filled up. A committee was appointed. It retired, it consulted, it returned to the senate and aunounced here, in the hearing of the galleries, that it could not report until the afternoon. At once the gallere were cleared. We all know that the ordinary dull legislation of this body attracts no one to the gallery. No, Mr. President, they came, they have come, in the same spirit in which the Roman populace used to go to witness the contests of gladators. They supposed there were to be contests here—men flying at each other—that there was something to fight over that had been injected finto the ordinary deliberations of this body. There is no doubt that that is the popular view of this matter, that the house of representatives have attacked anything—certainly not my dwn sense of what it is due to myself—I can not not excessing the myself—I can not the attention of passion in the not accuse any expression of passion of passion of the solder of its body at the continuity and it is harmful.
